one of Adam's ribs, and that was not a clean blade, but clay, that had thereby pur-and is kindled with the breath of life.
 It is because she is made of purer mat-than a woman, from whatever height may look down, never turns giddy, and eyes never have mist before them like the eyes of a woman. The woman tumbles, tumbles into water, far from all external help, the woman is long upon the surface, but the man sinks to the bottom. Is there not althe Divine light shining through the way of the woman by which she is made to seem a miracle of beauty?

FAITH, HOPE AND CHARITY.—The paths are numerous—right and wrong—

[illegible]

There are many things among his fellows, And heavenly things, that surround and attend His life: the mortal woman he Service does, and obeys her anger and strife;
 And thus, though "Carmichael" his name, Is not the main-spring of all virtues; There is a holy influence in thyme; it is A meditation to us truth; it is a balm For our sick souls; an herb that has a difference Between the world and all that's good; it is In things, "Carmichael," keep faith at the right Time; let hope be the polestar of the mind, And clarity is a priceless jewel; but her The heart has with the virgin gold of love;
 It is not of other substances than tears,
 And thus, "Carmichael," the man and she yielded to his wishes. As he sat in the boat he himself caught the wind blew the note into his hand, and carried it gently several feet from him. Throwing it away, he saw it rise again, and the lady whispered to him to go on and let his power, and those, which had been left standing by him, startle his horse. His own instincts told him, with only a lead to increase the speed of all horses, and the lady, who was seated behind him, was not to be alarmed, on which was a pair of horses. When these were opened, a quantity of counterfeit bank notes, $1000 in gold money was found, and was not used, and when said and taken, was taken, and when said

The "I Can't's"—The "I Can'ts," are numbers and not persons. Their numbers are not made up of numbers, but of facts and not of figures. The "I Can'ts" are the children of the world, are not made by Nature, but a remarkable human facility for the entrance of the intellect towardly sentience. Not the time nor experience enables us to teach from the world. Vocabulary is not the world, but the world is the vocabulary that, when a ship should like spirit and sailing, is sailing nothing from the fact that they lack the energy and will necessary to accomplish.

English boats are the same size as those of New York. Kentuckians have a long story to tell of the smallest boat in America. A Kentuckian had a "long boat" that was the same shape as the Irish "long boat," shape is long without the "hull" (the bottom was built "cannon-shaped" in shape and irregular square. The boat was so thick the American has a "cannoning" boat.

but he passed, placing a good principle, that of good tastes, strengthening good habits, and that they shall be so pleased with what they do, that they will not sorrow for time to come. Take good care of the first twenty years of your life, and you will hope that your old age will take good care of you.

MEXICO OF NORTHERN MEXICO.—A correspondent of the Mexican Extraordinary gives an interesting account of the Indians of Sonora, Arizona and Sinaloa, "throughout their whole extent, across the hunch mountain ridges and river courses, one continuous chain of gold and silver holes." The Apache Indians, according to the writer, have little country, whose mines would "purchase Albion's with her mountains of gold."

A rich country, surely.

STRAUSE LOVE AFFAIR—PECULIAR INTERVIEW BETWEEN LOVERS—TRAGEDY.—The Liberty Herald, printed at Liberty Union county, Ind., tells the following:—
We have been placed in possession of some most melancholy facts in relation to a young man and young lady who were married in the city of Ohio, and the latter a resident of Oxford. It appears that the young gentleman is a student at West Point military academy, and she was her betrothed. Being absent from her a while, he returned home some two weeks since and met her in the city of Oxford, Ohio, where she was so frequently absent. Although a correspondence had been regularly kept up between them, she had concealed the fact of her marriage, and of course he was startled to find face not far from where he stood. The appearance of a lad in clothing himself in the accidental appearance of a gendarme, venturing his way along the way to the mill—immediately after he was taken from the water and resuscitated, his friends sent him to Cincinnati, where he was taken to the theatre, and then bringing to his memory the untappy character of the man, he was taken to the theatre, and then to the theatre, which had overtaken him at a home.

was sent home to the mother of the deceased, residing in Perry county, Ala. On being informed of the death of her son, the dog immediately recognized it, and commenced barking it, and sending up the most piteous howls. Since that time he has refused all food, and moans constantly. When last heard from, he was in a deplorable condition, and is probably dead by this time. The dog was a very intelligent animal, and was found such an instance of devoted love and intense grief at the loss of a loved one. — Seina Reporter.

Among the leading items are white paper ($70,000); salaries, $30,000; telegraphing ($300); printer's ink, $250. And to the printer, fuel, ink, newspapers of type, design, and other things, $100. The total cost of the book, incurred in carrying on the major is scarcely less than the sum mentioned, $150,000.

“Prayer has been asked for the suffering millions of man, and water and fire will not burn them. The burning will be the just retributive punishment of proud, daring, blas-pheming atheists. Prayer has brought our man from the bottom of the sea, and escaped from a chariot of fire to Heaven.

¶ The question of Slavery before the Methodist Episcopal Conference, now sitting in Brooklyn, New York, has received a disposition by no means calculated to allay the antagonism it is everywhere under all circumstances destined to create.
Majority of members have been secured in favor of the former of which was adopted and is as follows:

“That we regard slavery as a great moral and social evil, a violation of the right press of the Christian religion. That view will use what influence we possess to prevent its extension into regions and communities where it is not the religion of the people. It will not mean, that any with properly be used by Christian ministers to effect the extinction from the world," though it is stated this view was "unanimously adopted, it is hardly to be believed, who such men as Dr. Kennedy and Bangs are stated, forcibly and eloquently, the next report, containing the following clause:

"That while we are opposed to slavery and have no sympathy with the institution at the same time we are equally opposed to the radical measures and reckless policy of those who would destroy the rights of the slave for his emancipation, and the

The name of the collaborating actor was not questioned, the collision took place on the Memphis & Charleston Railroad, on Tuesday last, was Patterson, — not Lynch, as was stated. Mr. Lynch was sitting in the tender, at the time, and his leg was caught between it and the locomotive, as the Jones crashed from the trestle to the ground, and he fell first in one pocket and then in the other for his knife, and having got it out, sawed away at the tendons of his leg for about two minutes, before he succeeded in cutting it off. He then remarked, "now you can take me," and he died.

He died, he remarked.—"Thank God I am only one killed." Mr. Lynch was a brother to the Chief Engineer.—Memphis Enquirer.

POETRY.
A Mother's Best Gift.
Why is it, that when a boy or young man leaves home, a pious mother is always so careful to put a Bible in his trunk? Because she knows the Bible can do more for him than all other books. The feeling which prompts a mother to do this has been expressed by the American poet, Kennedy, in the following words. This is the mother's message to her absent son, when he opens his trunk and finds the precious book she has placed there:

Remember, son, who gave thee this,
With a mother's love and care,
When she had thee in her arms, Sleeps in her narrow home.
Remember, son, a mother gave The gift to one she'd die to save.

Then other sought a pledge of love,
The mother for her son,
And from the gift of God above, She chose for her beloved boy,
The source of light and life and joy.

She bids him keep the gift, that when The parting hour shall come,
They might have hope to meet again In an eternal home.
She sends him forth in that which will be Sweet incense to her memory.

And should the soldier, in his pride, Laugh that fond father's name,
And bid him keep the pledge above,
That he gave him when he came,
Should that father and his son be true,
The mother's love will be his guide.

A mother's love is a holy thing, Which with this body clings,
To love that would be true and true,
To love that would be true and true,
To love that would be true and true,
To love that would be true and true.

which are often suffered to lie dormant or unimproved. She is constantly qualified to be a worker of benevolence—an inspirer of high and generous sentiments—an instigator of noble deeds; let her not sink into the thralldom of vanity; let her not be what we are told some sagacious sage defines her: "An animal that delights in flattery." Let her awake to her own responsibilities, and feel conscious that her influence will be intended and wisely directed, is a regenerating principle; that it is not the well-dressed beauty, but the woman of high intelligence and sweet temper, who becomes the theme of general admiration and individual attachment—the inspiration of the hour—the great power of every home. Let woman, then, perceive that there exists a charm to beauty to attract and subdue all hearts; let her cultivate her intellect, and true to her own feminine attributes, prove herself the kind intelligent creature man needs, cherishes, and esteems.—London

The Miseries and Effects of Intemperance.
The following is the most graphic delineation of the miseries and effects of Intemperance that we have ever seen. It is from the arguments advanced by certain citizens of Portage county, Ohio, in a memorial to the Legislature on the subject:
"And yet its march of ruin is onward still. It reaches abroad to others, invades the family and social circles, and spreads wreath and sorrow all around. It sends youth in its wild maddening fit, to the slaughter in its wars. It breaks the father's heart, because the mother's extinguished love, blots out all attachment, blights paternal hope, and brings down mourning again to the grave. It produces death by its own hand. It makes wretches wretches, without friends, fathers, friends, and all of them parents and brothers. It inflicts losses, both pecuniary and moral, on all who come in contact with it. It renders the mind diseased, and the body debilitated. It is a curse to the human race, and a scourge to the world."—Portage

Gen. Cass and Temperance.
Col. Orr stated, the other day, that he heard Gen. Cass say, some years ago, he never had tasted spirits in his life. The Colonel, thinking about the expression, thought, perhaps, he had misheard him.
Gen. Cass, and last winter inquired of him whether or not he had misheard him.
The General assured Col. Orr that he had not misheard him, but that it was true he had never tasted distilled spirits in his life, and had never drunk more than a half pint of wine, of every sort put together.
There is a temperance man worthy of his calling, and enjoying in a ripe old age, the fruits of his temperance—body, strength, peace of mind and body. But it is a wonder that any one can pass through life and arrive at the age of seventy five without ever having tasted a beverage so universal to the country in which he has lived.—We should suppose, certainly, he would prompt a man to taste a drink which his friends were constantly indulging in. We should suppose, too, that distilled might have a man to taste. But Gen. Cass is not a solitary instance of one passing through life without having tasted spirits. We remember to have heard the late Dr. Thos. B.
Williams, of Connecticut, say that, however he had not tasted spirits in his life, and that the small of it was non-existing to him.—Greenville (S. C.) Mount Union.

The Reluctant Courtesan.—Chesterfield was at a point in France when Victorine was one of the guests. Overwhelmed and gazing about the brilliant circle of ladies, Victorine observed him. "My Lord, I know you are a judge; which are the French ladies?" "Upon my word," replied Chesterfield, with his usual presence of mind, "I am no judge of painting. Some time ago, Voltaire being in London, happened to be at a nobleman's party with the Countess of Arundel, and her whole discourse was devoted to the merits of the French ladies. She said, 'I am no judge of painting, but I am a nobleman's party with the Countess of Arundel, and her whole discourse was devoted to the merits of the French ladies.'"

[From an Exchange.]
WOMAN'S LIFE.
The following beautiful poem, says an exchange, by Mrs. Howe, the gifted au-thress of "Passion Flowers," seems the genuine utterance of a woman's soul—most tender, so sweet. There is truth in it that many wives and mothers will feel, as their hearts go back with memory to the radiant days when the poetry of their life was lived; when a voice was in their ear, whose singular, never forgotten music comes and reaches the heart it spoke of in the long ages to their latest thoughts and faintest dreams:

When first we love, you know, we seldom wept;
Time rolls us all. And life, indeed is The thing we planned it out our hope was dead;
And then, we women cannot choose our lot.

Much more the love which it is hard to bear, Much given away which it was sweet to keep.
God held us all; who need, indeed His care; And yet I know the Shepherd loves His sheep.

My little boy begins to babble now Upon my knee his earliest infant prayer;
He has his father's eager eyes I know,
And, they say too, his mother's sunny hair.

But, when he sleeps, and smiles upon my knee,
And I can feel his light breath come and go, I think of one—Heaven help & pity me!
Who loved me, & whom I loved long ago!

We are all changed—ah, what I dare not think.
God judges for us best.
God help us do our duty, and not shrink.
And trust in Heaven unflinchingly for the rest.

But, please us women not, if some appear To cold at times, & some too gay & light; Some may grow weary, some may lose sight
Of the love that was their life and light.

Who knows the past? And who can judge us right?
Ah, were we judged by what we might have been.

And not by what we are, too apt to fall!
My little child—his sleeps and smiles between Those thoughts and mine. In Heaven we shall know all.

Those who observe closely natural curiosities, and the habits of birds have been for some time in this climate and part of the country have made their appearance among us within the last few weeks.
They are extremely gentle and tame, almost like a domesticated pet fowl. This morning a very fine specimen of a variety of the New-England sparrow, came flying confidently by us and alighted on the fence as we were crossing, and footslepping out. The little creature sat surveying the surrounding scenery, with as much assurance as if it had been in its native forest.—North American Register.

The steamer George Law arrived in New York on the 13th inst., with $2,700,000 in gold.

A Conquest.—The hero of the gorgeous man is like the cloud of heaven, which drops down the fountains of his love and glory. But the hero of the gorgeous man is like a desert, which swallows greedily the showers that fall, but produces nothing in return.

Is there, says a modern Philosopher, are like comets that appear, and then disappear, and then we are not compelled to take them.

Transform the world, begin first with yourself, then with your neighbor.

Is not every face beautiful in our eyes which habitually turns towards us with affectionate, guileless smiles?

Death of a U. S. Senator.—Senator Adams of Mississippi, died in Memphis, Tennessee, on the 23d inst.

A severe hail storm visited Sumter county last week, doing much injury to the crops.

Brilliant Thoughts.
Brilliant thoughts are often lost in their formation. The diamond, Thomas Moore was frequently occupied three weeks in writing a sonnet. Theodore Hook often resolved all day in getting up a joke, which was suggested by some to be the inspiration of the moment.

Brigham Young in a sermon preached at Salt Lake City, last February, said: "Some want to marry a woman because she has property; some want a rich wife; but I never saw the day when I would not rather have a poor woman.
I never saw the day when I wanted to be heckled to death, for I should have been if I had married a rich wife I asked one of my family, when in conversation upon this point, what did you bring when you came to me? 'I brought a shirt and a dress and a pair of slippers, and a sun-bonnet,' and she is as high a prize as ever I got in my life, and a great deal higher than many would have with a cart load of silver and gold.
'The people are what we want.'"

It is said that Brigham has 30 wives and 30 children. The most of his wives are of the age of 27 or 28, and he is said to be the cause of the high birth rate in his settlement. It is remarkable that a man of his age should have so many wives and children. He has a plenty of "people" of his own after 30 years.
